Title Page:

Running Head: EXPLORATION IN OUR INTELLECTUAL COMMONWEALTH 1

1" Margins on all sides

A 'Running head' is an abbreviated title that is printed at the top of the pages of the manuscript, article, or paper.

Page numbers are placed in the upper 'Right Hand' corner of the page.

1" Margins on all sides

A New Exploration in Our Intellectual Commonwealth

Eric Garcia

California State University, Northridge

For the Title Page example, the title of the article was started on the 5th line. The four X's shows the double line spacing before the title.

In Figure 2.1, in the APA 6th ed., 'Elements of an Author Note' is shown. For student papers, the 'Author Note' is generally not applicable.

Psychology 321

Professor Charles Chang

July 7, 2010

1" Margins on all sides

Student papers may be required to include the class section, instructor's name, and the date submitted. Ask your instructor of what they prefer.

Title

[APA 6th: section 2.01]

- Title of the work should be typed in uppercase and lowercase letters.
- The recommended length is no more than 12 words. If the title is more than 12 words, abbreviate the title so that the reader has a general understanding of what the topic is about.

Running head

[APA 6th: section 8.03]

- “Running head” is only noted on the title page and is written in uppercase and lowercase letters.
- Following the phrase Running head, the title of the work should be typed all in uppercase.
- Should only summarize the main idea of the work. A running head should be a maximum of 50 characters, counting letters, punctuation and spacing.

Name & Institution

[APA 6th: section 2.02]

- Author’s name [first name, middle initial(s), and last name].
- Affiliation identifies the location where the author or authors were when the research was conducted.

Abstract Page:

ensuring that high school students benefit from the academic community's wealth of knowledge.

One way to meet this challenge is by building an effective outreach program that benefits not only high school students, but also the university and the community as a whole.

In Figure 2.1, in the APA 6th ed., in the Abstract example the word "Keywords" is shown. For student papers, 'Keywords' are generally not applicable. Publishers will require author/s to provide 'Keywords' for submitted papers for publication. This helps researchers find the paper within a database. Ask your instructor of what they prefer.

Abstract (Section 2.04, APA 6th edition):

- "Brief, comprehensive summary of the contents of the article"
- "Single paragraph without paragraph indentation"
- "Do not exceed the abstract word limit for the journal to which you are submitting your article. Word limits vary from journal to journal and typically range from 150 to 250 words."

Running head

[APA 6th: section 8.03]

- “Running head” is only noted on the title page and is written in uppercase and lowercase letters.
- Following the phrase Running head, the title of the work should be typed all in uppercase.
- Should only summarize the main idea of the work. A running head should be a maximum of 50 characters, counting letters, punctuation and spacing.

Abstract

[APA 6th: section 2.04]

- “Type the abstract itself as a single paragraph without paragraph indentation” (APA, 2010, p. 27).
- A brief summary of a research article, thesis, review, conference proceedings or any in-depth analysis of a particular subject of discipline.
- Allows readers to quickly glance at the main purpose of the research prior to them retrieving the item.
- After the title page, exclude the phrase Running head in all subsequent pages.

Body of Paper - Introduction:

The diagram illustrates the formatting of a sample paper introduction page. It includes the following elements:

- Page Number: The page number "3" is located in the top right corner.
- Section Header: The section header "Exploration in Our Intellectual Commonwealth" is centered below the title. A red box labeled "Indent" points to the first line of the first paragraph.
- First Paragraph: The first paragraph begins with "CSUN is a part of the 23-campus CSU system. CSUN's Oviatt Library currently has 25 librarians at the rank of faculty. As part of CSU, the Oviatt Library has been committed to fostering information competency and lifelong learning skills within the academic community. In the 1990s, CSU created the 'Work Group,' which defined information competency. The Work Group determined that 'the ability to find; evaluate, use, and communicate information in all of its various formats' would become the nucleus of the CSU's definition of information competency (Information Competencies Final Report, 1995, p. 1). This definition serves as a guiding principle of the library's outreach program, which reaches across campus and community to make students aware of the library's services and resources."
- Second Paragraph: The second paragraph begins with "In 2004, the library established an outreach librarian position. Working with members of the Reference and Instructional Services Department, the Outreach Librarian ensures that library's mission of promoting information competency reaches across the academic community. The largest component of this goal is an outreach initiative to K-12 students. Occasionally tours are provided to elementary level students, a rare occurrence for students in primary education, who traditionally may have received only rudimentary library instruction. Generally, though, the library performs outreach to secondary level (high school) students."
- Third Paragraph: The third paragraph begins with "To reach out to high schools, the library has established an Advance Placement Student Program (APSP), allowing participating high schools a unique opportunity to borrow materials except for certain restricted items that are limited to CSUN faculty, staff, and current enrolled students; the privilege is extended to only Advanced Placement (AP) students. The Library also provides instruction sessions to both general and AP high school classes when teachers or high school librarians arrange a session with the Outreach Librarian."
- Margins: A red double-headed arrow on the left side indicates a 1-inch margin on all sides.
- Bottom Margin: A red double-headed arrow at the bottom indicates a 1-inch margin on all sides.

Running head

[APA 6th: section 8.03]

- “Running head” is only noted on the title page and is written in uppercase and lowercase letters.
- Following the phrase Running head, the title of the work should be typed all in uppercase.
- Should only summarize the main idea of the work. A running head should be a maximum of 50 characters, counting letters, punctuation and spacing.

Introduction

[APA 6th: section 2.05]

- The opening paragraph of your paper will provide your readers with their initial impressions of your argument, your writing style, and the overall quality of your work.
- A vague, disorganized, error-filled, off-the-wall, or boring introduction will probably create a negative impression.
- “State why the problem deserves new research.”
- “Discuss the relevant related literature.”
- “After you have introduced the problem and have developed the background material, explain your approach to solving the problem.”

Participants

Freshman. All freshman participants were students with less than 20 cumulative units who were declared psychology majors as California State University, Northridge (CSUN). Out of the 247 freshman who were mailed a survey, 55 responded and completed the measure providing a 22% response rate. The average age of the 55 freshman who completed the survey was 18.9 years (SD = 0.58) and approximately 84% were female. The majority (30.9%) of the freshmen identified themselves as being Latino/Hispanic, while 23.6% identified themselves as White/Caucasian.

Seniors. All senior participants were current psychology majors at CSUN with over 100 units. The senior survey was mailed to 467 graduating seniors, from whom 88 responded and completed the measure, providing a 19% response rate. Out of the 88 seniors who complete the survey, 78.4% were female and the average age was 28.2 years (SD = 7.98); median age was 24.4. The majority of the seniors identified themselves as being White/Caucasian or Latino/Hispanic.

Running head

[APA 6th: section 8.03]

- “Running head” is only noted on the title page and is written in uppercase and lowercase letters.
- Following the phrase Running head, the title of the work should be typed all in uppercase.
- Should only summarize the main idea of the work. A running head should be a maximum of 50 characters, counting letters, punctuation and spacing.

Method

[APA 6th: section 2.06]

- “The Method section describes in detail how the study was conducted, including conceptual and operational definitions of the variables used in the study. Different types of studies will rely on different methodologies; however, a complete description of the methods used enables the reader to evaluate the appropriateness of your methods and the reliability and the validity of your results. It also permits experienced investigators to replicate the study.”

Indent (Paragraphs and Indentation)

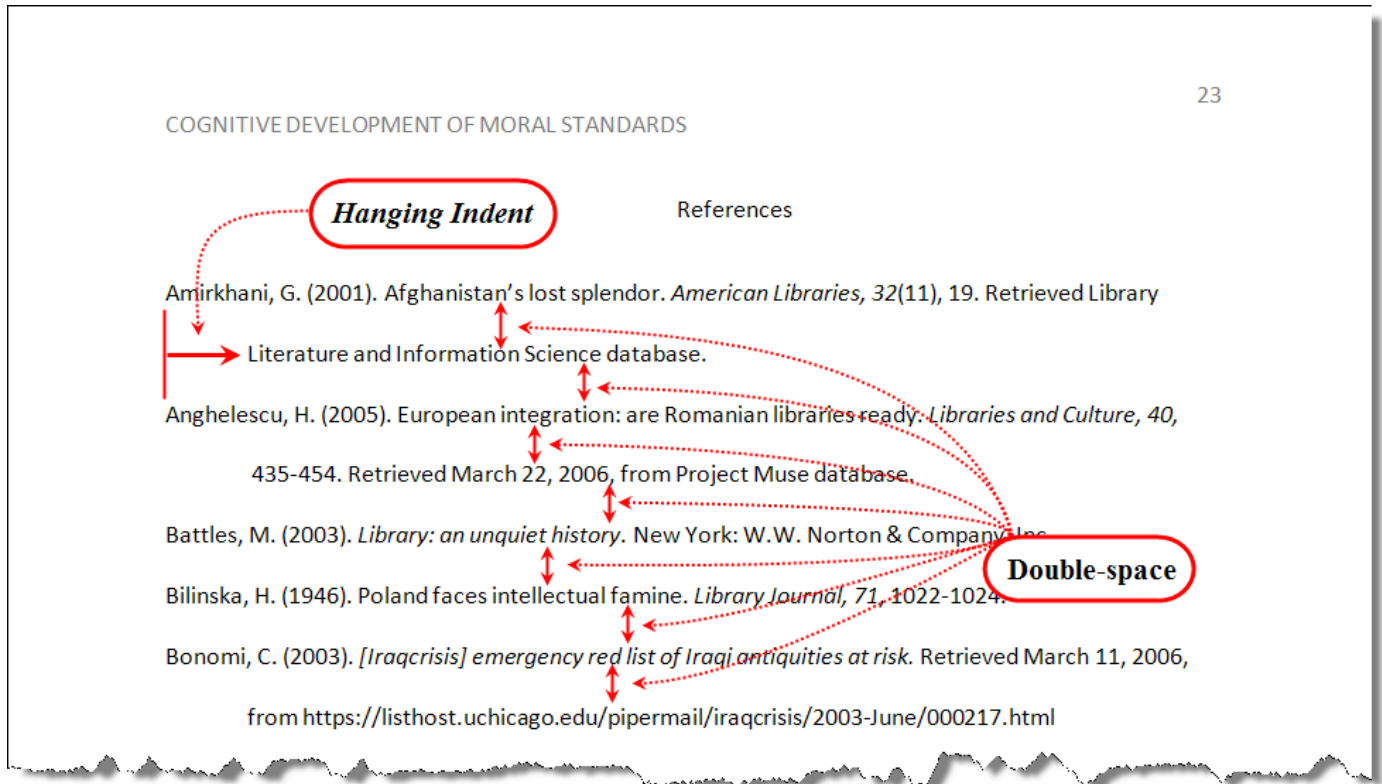

[APA 6th: section 8.03]

- “Indent the first line of every paragraph and the first line of every footnote. For consistence, use the tab key, which should be set at 5 to seven spaces, or ½ in.”
- The default setting of the “tab key” in Microsoft Word has been preset for a ½ inch indentation.
- To manually add an indentation, start flush left and tap the space bar 15 times, which should equal ½ inch.

Description of EUREKA: Article found using an online database, provided by the CSUN Career Center. If the information retrieved is for the purpose of a non-academic community, provide the URL.

Note 1: If the information you obtained is from a database (accessed from the library) “include the same elements, in the same order, as you would for a reference to a fixed-media [such as print]” (APA, 2010, p. 187). The goal is to allow readers to locate the information in print form if they do not have access to the database.

Note 2: “If no DOI has been assigned to the content, provide the home page URL of the journal or of the book or report publisher. If you are accessing the article from a private database, you may need to do a quick web search to locate this URL” (APA, 2010, p. 191).

Note 3: “In general, it is not necessary to include database information. Journal coverage in a particular database may change over time; also, if using an aggregator such as EBSCO, OVID, or ProQuest (each of which contain many discipline-specific databases, such as PsycINFO), it may be unclear exactly which database provided the full text of an article” (APA, 2010, p. 192).

Author's Name in Reference

In order to assess the damage from war and looting of Iraq's National Archive, and National Library and Museum, UNESCO sent teams of librarians there in both May and June of 2003. A French librarian, Jean-Marie Arnoult, who was part of the second team, stated that protecting the buildings was clearly not a priority for the American-led forces (UNESCO, 2003). Responding to reports describing the cataclysmic devastation of Iraq's cultural heritage, the United Nations (UN) stepped forward to create a program that would implement a world wide strategy for Iraq's rehabilitation (Bouchenaki, 2004).

Explanation:

- If information from a source is used, place both the author(s) surname and the year, separated by a comma, in parentheses.

Explanation:

- If the author appears as part of the narrative within the sentence, cite only the year of publication in parentheses.
- An author may suggest a work by a particular individual, in this case Chris Hedges. Since the author is summarizing Hedges work, place the year in parenthesis of the work cited after the name of the author.

Digital Object Identifier

- A digital object identifier (abbreviated DOI) is a permanent identifier given to an electronic document.
- Similar to a URL, but in contrast to a URL, it is not dependent upon the electronic document's location.
- The International DOI Foundation (IDF) defines DOI name as "a digital identifier for any object of intellectual property" (doi.org); it explains that the DOI is used for "persistently identifying a piece of intellectual property on a digital network and associating it with related current data in a structured extensible way." (doi.org)
- A typical use of a DOI is to give a scholarly paper or article a unique identifying number that anyone can use to obtain information about the publication's location on a digital network.
- Accessing item using DOI: <http://www.doi.org/>

Example of DOI:

Publication Frequency:

- A journal publication frequency allows you to know how many times the issue is published within a timeframe. On a rare occasion, the subscription (or publication) may indicate that its frequency varies. There are seven main categories:
 1. Annual (once a year)
 2. Bi-monthly (every two months)
 3. Biannual (twice a year)
 4. Monthly (once a month)
 5. Quarterly (four times a year or three month intervals)
 6. Triannual (three times in one year, note: triennial is once every three years)
 7. Weekly (one a week)

Paraphrasing or Summary example:

Postpositivism is rooted in the scientific method. It derives from positivism and developed in response to a variety of criticism leveled against positivism during the 20th century. Similar to positivism, postpositivism is primarily concerned with the search for causal relationships that enable us to predict and control our environments (Miller, 2000). Postpositivism departs from positivism in a variety of ways, however. Corman (2005) recently provided an excellent summary of these debates and of postpositivism, and delineated several basic principles of postpositivism that guide theory and research in organizational communication. While Corman may...

- (Miller, 2000): if the idea is from another work, you have to reference the author and year of publication in your in-text reference.
- Corman (2005): if you refer to the name of the author in your work for the first time, reference the year of publication in your in-text reference next to the authors name.

Short Quotations:

More specifically, postpositivism is largely recognized as the “dominant theoretical frame for studying organizations” (Mumby & May, 2005, p. 4). As seen in the remaining chapters of this book, the postpositivist perspective guides the bulk of workplace relationship research. I include social constructionism because it was the foundational theoretical perspective for the “interpretive turn” taken in organizational research (Mumby & May, 2005). The interpretive turn represented a watershed moment for organizational scholars (Deetz, 2001) in that the move from studying “communication in organizations” to studying “communication as constituting organizations” radically changed how we study communication and organizations (Allen, 2005).

Quote within a quote:

The type of job an employee has can impact the likelihood that they will develop a romantic workplace relationship. Specifically, the more autonomous one’s job, the more likely one is to engage in workplace romance. Job autonomy, defined as “the ability to make decisions about one’s own work” and the “freedom to move in the work environment and to make contacts with coworkers” (Pierce et al., 1996, p. 17), essentially enables employees...
